

Let My Ship Sail

Words and Music © Abi Moore (MCPS- PRS)

There used to be a breeze in my sails, a heart in my chest
But too much canon fire put this boat to rest
See I've sailed these seas and I know how this world lies
How it laughs at you with its jealous eyes
I was sitting here thinking that I could change the world
But they turn ambition into a dirty word
And if I hear what they say, they'll take my fight away....
...So let my ship sail north out in the wind.

I used to think I was strong - I had not a care
There wasn't a dream that I wouldn't dare
But people make it so easy to give up when they cut you down
If I believed in that religion I'd never leave this town
Folks here move slowly and steady and try to drag you down
So they won't be left behind when the world turns around
Another stifled mind just seems to me a crime...
.... So let my ship sail north out in the wind

So let my ship sail north
So let my ship sail forth
So let my ship sail north out in the wind

And if it all fails I'll hold my head high
At least I can say "Didn't I try?"

So let my ship sail north
So let my ship sail forth
So let my ship sail north out in the wind
So let my ship sail north
So let my ship sail forth
So let my ship sail north out in the wind
So let my ship sail north out in the wind
